Denver Paramount Theatre
April 10th, 2011 --- 2 pm

Theatre organist Brett Valliant at the Denver Paramount's Mighty Wurlitzer and the Denver School of Arts Band Ensembles

An afternoon of fun music for the entire family featuring the theatre pipe organ and band ensembles playing alone and together.

Adult tickets: $12 (includes free parking at two ramps)
Students 18 and under: no ticket required

Brett Valliant, from Wichita, Kansas, has toured the US and abroad as a solo theatre organ artist, featured organ soloist with orchestras and as an accompanist for silent films. Critics internationally have defined his performances as exciting, refreshing, unorthodox and astonishing. For his innovative approach to musicianship and performance Brett credits his love and passion for rock 'n' roll, classical, jazz and popular music.

Under the direction of David Hammond, the band ensembles of the Denver School of Arts have a long history of musical variety and distinguished performance. They have performed throughout the US and both the groups and individual instrumentalists have received numerous national recognition awards from Downbeat Magazine, from the Colorado Music Educators Conference and other band organizations and festivals.
